"11th International Demonstration Show 2023 for the Construction Materials Industry"

The national and international raw materials and building materials industry will again meet in Homberg/Nieder-Ofleiden in the state of Hesse in Germany from 23 to 26 August 2023. This is already the 11th time that Europe's largest basalt quarry, operated by Mitteldeutsche Hartstein-Industrie AG, will be the venue for a unique demo show – steinexpo.

This impressive trade fair arena will be the stage where leading manufacturers of construction machinery, suppliers of mineral processing technology and add-on equipment as well as service providers present their machines and systems, industry innovations and service offerings in a concentrated four-day exhibition – practical, solution-oriented, powerful and without frills!

The unique concept as well as the imposing trade fair venue attracted more than 53,000 visitors interested in the industry to the quarry in 2017. In particular, the high rate of trade visitors of more than 90% shows how much the industry values the unique cluster of information density of the latest technologies, innovations and solutions!

Of course, this does not only apply to German-speaking countries – more than 23% represent international trade visitors who came to steinexpo 2017. Visitors used the impressive live demonstrations and the practical solution concepts on show for their purchasing decisions and for a healthy professional exchange of expertise with the exhibiting companies.
